The Tribune is kicking because Foote got 33 1/2 per cent of the proceeds of his engagement, but overlooks the fact that the Fair fund received 60 1/2 per cent. If the Tribune man understands figures he may be able to see that had the donations been withheld, the Fair fund would have suffered twice as much as Foote.

Anarchists.

London, Dec. 9.—A Madrid dispatch says that the police raided the house suspected of being occupied by the Anarchist Measina De Rio Peco, and secured a number of important documents. It is believed that the movements of members of the Anarchist party can now be learned. The discovery of these documents confirms the suspicions of the police of the extent of the movement, the spread of the Anarchists' propaganda by means of dynamite and other outrages.

The information gleaned from the documents have resulted in increased activity against the Anarchist. At Sabadel the police arrested two prominent residents on a charge of aiding Anarchists. Other residents of the place were arrested.

The most important arrest growing out of the Rio Peco discovery is Thomas Altet, charged with being the author of the recent dynamite outrage at Villaneuva y La Geltru. Altet told all he knew of the outrage.

A number of associates have been arrested, and further wholesale arrests are expected. Three of the men arrested had in their possession papers implicating others in the outrage.

Challenged the Emperor.

Paris, Dec. 9.—Richard Coedler, the American citizen who arrived at Marenwerder in July, 1891, and was arrested for having sent a challenge to Emperor William, is among the passengers who left Bremen on December 5th by the Havel for New York. He was released at the request of President Cleveland.

THE DAYS OF GOLD.

Senator Perkins' Old Mining Cabin to be Exhibited.

According to indications, the forty-miner camp will prove an even more interesting feature of the fair than was at first anticipated. Eugene Hahn, who has just returned to town after a tour through the interior, made in the interest of the project, that the collection of old-time relics and curiosities will be far more extensive than it was originally believed could be brought together. A special feature will be a number of the mining cabins occupied in old days by distinguished Pacific casters, not copies, be it understood, but the original structures, which have been taken a part and will be transported to this city and re-erected at the fair. Senator Perkins' old cabin at Thompson's Flat, in which in old days he lived and slept and cooked his flapjacks and beans, is one of those which is to come here. Senator Fair's is another and John Mackay's is still a third. An earnest effort was also made to obtain the Coloma cabin of James W. Marshall, the original discoverer of gold, but the State owns it and permission to remove it could not be obtained. As the next best thing, however, an exact fac-simile of the structure will be erected, and within it will be exhibited any number of actual relics of the dead and gone discoverer. Among these will be his saddle, level and compass, all made by himself; also his lamp, stove, cooking utensils, etc., and a number of other articles.

A fac-simile of Sutter's fort, ten by ten feet in size and constructed of concrete, will also be given a place in the camp, and within this will be displayed a number of Sutter's relics, including a boot with a wooden sole worn by the doughty general, also a pair of his spurs; a picture the frame of which was gilded by himself, also the saw which cut the first boards ever sawn in California and which were used in building Sutter's mill. His cannon, first fired in California in the year 1848, will also be exhibited. Among other curiosities of the camp will be the stage coach in which Hank Monk drove Horace Greeley on the latter's memorable ride over the mountains. All the relics will be authenticated, also, by certificates establishing their genuineness beyond the possibility of a doubt.

During the continuance of the fair all the old-time operations of mining life will be faithfully represented day after day, and besides an illustration of everything appertaining to mining and cleaning gold, the sports and pastimes of the miners will also be shown. Long pouches filled with gold dust and nuggets—brass filings and scraps—will be flung recklessly on the table as of yore, and among the old-timers who will thus live over again "the days of old, the days of gold and the days of '49" will be that famous Meadow Lake miner and prospector, John Clarke. A magnificent figure of a man, over six feet high and weighing 250 pounds, he will be an attraction in himself, merely to look at, but added to this no one will be better able to show just how the forty-niners worked the shovel, the pan and the rocker, and between the times "bucked faro" for all they were worth.

Articles of incorporation of the '49 Mining Camp were filed with the County Clerk yesterday. The corporation is formed to manage the concession known as the '49 Mining Camp at the California International Midwinter Exposition, in connection with which it is intended to conduct a general mercantile business, an old time newspaper, hotel, dancehouse, Indian camp, etc. The incorporators are Frank McLaughlin of Oroville, San Davis of the Carson Appeal and James H. Love, Eugene Hahn and Arthur F. Carnody of this city. The capital stock is $25,000.—S. F. Chronicle.

The Nevada Building.

From the plans the building will present quite an imposing appearance. The front is adorned with alternate pillars of silver and gold, with lattice work between. On top will be erected a Summer garden or cafe.

"This is to be a light but durable structure protected by awnings, and with a grove of palms growing on the roof. Meals and other refreshments will be served in the cafe."

Witnesses for the defense in the Chris Evans case give the prisoner a good reputation.

The body of a man was found nine miles from Haniord, in Kings county, on Cross Creek. The man had apparently accidentally killed himself. No evidence leading to his identity could be found on his person excepting a package of German papers printed in Decorah, Iowa, and addressed to John Peterson.

Shanowakin.

The above is the name of the new Indian play which is to take the country by storm the coming season.

The following notices from the Music and Drama are published as interesting to Carson people: John E. Mack will appear next week at the National Theatre as the Shanowakin, in R. C. White's new dramatization.

Black Eagle, of the Shanowakin tribe, of Indians will act as chief scalper during the run of the play at the National. He strips 180 pounds. The rehearsals of The Shanowakin are being directed by R. C. White, the dramatist, and the Indians are adapting themselves to stage requirements quite intelligently.

General Oliver Roberts arrived in town with fifteen painted warriors of the plains to take part in the great production of The Shanowakin at National Theatre on Wednesday, the 13th inst.

"Coyote Boy," of the Shanowakin is only four years old, but he is the cutest mite of a savage that a lady ever went into raptures over. He plays an important part in the great Indian drama, written by R. C. White, at the National Theatre next Wednesday.

The Indian dresses, war-bonnets and equipments for The Shanowakin were gathered by General Oliver Roberts from various Rocky Mountain tribes at a cost of $5,000. A grand display of real aboriginal splendor will prove a great attraction at the National Theatre next Wednesday evening.

Gen. Roberts, the great Indian authority of the Shanowakin troupe, which opens at the National on the 13th inst., has had a life so full of weird romance and wonderful adventure that he has had many high bids for the sole right to publish his history. He is a marvelously interesting talker and a born humorist.
